Pirtle's Cactus Garden?

One of the largest of its kind open to the public

This collection was started as a hobby in September 1930 and has been gradually built up to contain about 1500 species, covering some 4 acres.

These plants were collected from all parts of the world and include many rare and unusual specimens, many being over 15 feet high and weighing tons.

If you are a lover of nature this is something you should not miss.

Open every day in the year

There is a small admission charge.
If not satisfied, your money gladly refunded.

This garden has now been commercialized and many surplus species are sold, in seedlings and mature cuttings; also seeds, wholesale and retail. Also have many large specimen plants for sale. Ask or write for price lists, if interested.

An assortment of miniature gardens, priced reasonably for sale at all times. Also a good line of planting pottery and novelties.
